WHEELING, AUGUST 14, 1891.

Quay's Mistaken Idea.

Senator Quay announces that he will vote to seat Brice in spite of the charge that, being a citizen of New York, he is ineligible to represent Ohio in the United States Senate. Mr. Quay is not the first Republican to favor seating an Ohio Democrat not legally entitled to the place. The other gentlemen who thus voted were subjected to very strong public censure for their action. Perhaps, however, Mr. Quay does not care for other people's opinions; at least he intimates as much when he says, "If the people of Ohio want a New Yorker to represent them I have not the slightest objection."

It would be interesting to know where the Pennsylvania senator obtained the idea that the people of Ohio want a New Yorker to represent them in the Senate. It is a notorious fact that very few, if any, of "the people" want Brice, and that if the matter had been left to them Calvin S. Brice would have been allowed to remain at his New York home.

If by "the people of Ohio" Senator Quay means the Democratic members of the Legislature who subordinated to the power of boodle, he certainly possesses a limited idea of what constitutes "the people."

The Latest White House Story.

During the temporary absence of the heads of the administration from Washington the alert correspondents stationed at the National Capital find the news business rather dull. They are obliged to send something to their papers, however, and in the absence of anything else to write about are forced to fall back on the sweet morsels of scandal furnished them by the busy gossips. They are not particular about who it affects, whose heartstrings it breaks, or what sacred domestic relations it violates.

The latest story of this nature is to the effect that the President's father-in-law, the venerable Doctor Scott, has been forced to leave the White House owing to certain alleged indignities heaped upon him by the Harrison family. Such stories have been told before about other families that have inhabited the Executive mansion, and they have always been traced to the scandal mongers who abound in Washington society, and whose sole mission in life seems to be to manufacture "news" for sensational journals.

The Scott-Harrison story is so absurd that it scarcely calls for a denial. It is a pity that some sort of punishment is not provided for the journalistic liar whose appetite for sensations has corrupted his sense of decency.

Independent Maryland Farmers.

In the Democratic state of Maryland the Democratic party views with alarm the attitude of the Farmer's Alliance. There are two causes contributing to the uneasiness manifested. First, most of the Alliance men are, or were, Democrats and they have served notice on Gorman that they are tired of Gormanism in Maryland politics. Second, they have, in convention assembled, declared in opposition to a third party, believing that the work of the Alliance is educational only and "its members are free each for himself to decide with which party he will act." These form a declaration of independence which naturally causes the Democratic bosses who have for so long held the farmers of Maryland by the throats to feel nervous regarding the future.

Hope for the Future.

The question of dress reform, which is just now agitating the feminine world, is so variegated as to style that it may prove a stumbling block in the way of attaining the desired end. The leaders all agree that reform is needed, but disagree as to the costume most suitable. Ideas so widely differ that it seems almost impossible for a compromise to be fixed upon. However, the discussion is profitable as well as entertaining, and there is hope that benefit may result. The women are interested and that is a long step in the direction of the consummation to be devoutly wished.

It is Their Due.

At Bowling Green, Ohio, in speaking to the veterans of Wood county, Major McKinley came out strongly on the pension question. He said much that is worth considering by the croakers who are howling about the enormous cost of the pension list.

Major McKinley very properly takes the ground that the union was worth preserving, and that the people cannot go too far in showing their appreciation of the services and sacrifices of the men who thought enough of their country to save it without counting the cost. "We enlisted not for fame, applause, or the pittance we received, but to preserve the union," said he, "and the debt of the government to the soldiers is most sacred."

The major is right. The debt we owe to the men who came to the rescue of the union when it was in peril is beyond estimate; it cannot be computed. The soldiers are not looting the treasury, as political demagogues would have us believe. They are simply receiving what is their just due from a grateful republic.

The death of James Russell Lowell recalls one blot in his record—the fact that, although in New York on the day of the funeral of ex-President Arthur, whose commission he held as Minister to the Court of St. James, he took a train for Boston rather than attend the funeral services. This act was severely criticized at the time and lost him much of the esteem in which he was held by the people. He could be forgiven for his change of political views, but not for this open disrespect to the memory of the man who had commissioned him to the highest diplomatic position held by any American. The act was unworthy of so great a man.

THE INTELLIGENCER is a firm believer in the efficacy of a campaign of education, and is in favor of taking time by the forelock. It is not too early for the Republican clubs to be getting to work for the great battle of next year. There is too much at stake that involves the welfare of the people to put off until the eve of the campaign what can be done to-day. The clubs did a great work in 1888, and much of it was due to the fact that an early start was made. The work of reorganization in West Virginia should begin at once.

The time set for the formal opening of the Ohio campaign is more than a week off. Notwithstanding this fact ten thousand people in the vicinity of Bowling Green were enthusiastic enough to turn out Wednesday and tender Major McKinley an ovation. It was not a political occasion, being a soldiers' reunion, but the orator and his position had much to do with attracting the great crowd. At such times the man and what he represents are largely considered.

The New York Press draws this striking picture: "The 'doubler' in the English sheet iron mills where they make block sheets for tin plate, receives $1.92 per day. In Pittsburgh the 'doubler' gets $3.85 per day." In other words, the American "doubler" gets double the wages that the English "doubler" gets. This is the land of Protection with a big P.

BLAINE, Harmony and Reciprocity will be the war cry of the Pennsylvania Republicans in convention next week. The Blaine and reciprocity party of it comes naturally to the Pennsylvanian, and so unanimously is the sentiment in these regards that there will be no doubt about the harmony part occupying a conspicuous place in the body of the convention.

SENATOR STEWART, of Nevada, is so enraptured with his pet theories about free silver that he forgets that a large and respectable proportion of the people of the country are for honest money. The Senator has yet to learn that the mine owners of Nevada are small potatoes when compared with the whole of this Yankee nation.

HOTSKIPPERS who did not have the foresight to provide themselves with their daily supply of meat before the dawn of yesterday were the only ones who were put out by the butchers' celebration. The great majority of citizens were glad to see the butchers enjoy themselves and to unite with them in their day's pleasure.

CONGRESSMAN JOHN O. PENDLETON has been "awaking the echoes of Webster county" with his alleged eloquence. Some Democrats are inquiring if Mr. Pendleton's sense of propriety (if he has any) should not dictate to him that it would be well for him to make a record as a legislator before canvassing for a second term.

THE St. Paul Pioneer Press isn't much on poetry, but it occasionally strikes the truth in good metre—as, for instance:

The campaign liar,
Whose home is Ohio,
Is making things frightfully hot;
But the weather that's fiery
Now gives us a very Much more than the politics pot.

THE Ritchie county farmers who are refusing fabulous prices for oil leases are evidently carried away by the excitement of the moment, though the INTELLIGENCER wishes they may realize their hopes that the new field is the best yet discovered.

THREE leading Democratic candidates for sheriff have been informally announced and the campaign promises to be interesting from now on. In the meantime Republicans should do some thinking. There is plenty of time, but not too much of it.

THE Washington Post remarks that the Cincinnati Enquirer is giving an enthusiastic support to the Democracy of Kentucky and Indiana. That partially accounts for the restlessness of the Democracy of Ohio.

"This weather may be good for corn, but man cannot live by corn alone," says the New York Press. Does the Press expect to gain a circulation in Kentucky by preaching such heresy?

A Marvellous Meteor.

Memphis City Republic.

On Saturday evening, about 9:25, there was seen in the northeast, a meteor, or what seemed to be a thickened molten mass, dropping from some plastic body of celestial green, and shaped like a fishing bob, with the point no larger than a man's fist. Attorney Hoffman and Ernest Foster who were conversing on the portico, at the former's residence, both agree as to its size and appearance, and newspapers generally are noting the fame. It was so brilliant that a pin could be seen on the floor of the porch where these two gentlemen sat. It did not shoot or flash, but dropped to the earth like a lump of taffy from some great spoon.

PURELY PERSONAL MATTER.

The Marquis of Ailesbury, who has just been raised permission to impoverish the family estates by selling a £750,000 slice of them, is one of those sporting men who have once won a big race with his horse Savernake, has managed to gamble away more than a hundred times as much on worthless screws and polished blacklegs. He is a cheap snob who has had a legal setback which the heirs of the estate will appreciate when the present Marquis has been gathered to the forefathers whom he has dishonored.

The son of General McClellan is a worthy son of a worthy sire. When "Little Mac" died he left only a small property, which Colonel McClellan immediately turned over to his mother in order to secure her comfort in her declining years. He is now making his mark in the world and gathering in his ducats, having the responsible position of treasurer of the Brooklyn bridge.

Dr. Douglas, who attended General Grant on his deathbed and ruined his practice and prospects by his unremitting care of his distinguished patient, is now a broken man, ruined in pocket and helpless in health. But a graceful country will not let him starve, and his wife has been provided with a subordinate situation in one of the branches of the Treasury Department.

Colonel Tourtelotte, who was buried at La Crosse, Wis., a few days ago, was the commander at Altona, Ga., to whom Sherman first sent instructions to "hold the fort." Later, when General Corse took charge and the fort was attacked, Tourtelotte, as well as Corse, was wounded. Wisconsin feels that her son deserves a large share of the credit of that famous incident.

The Marquis of Lorne is now accused of having a love of cock-fighting and of knowing how to fix a pair of gulls or cut a comb as well as any man in the trade. To those who know how pretty Louise keeps her eyes upon her husband a denial of this accusation is unnecessary. Lorne knows what is good for him.

When Steele Mackaye, James Whitcomb Riley and Colonel Tom Ochiltree put their feet under Henry Irving's hospitable mahogany, it is more than probable that there weren't many corkscrews ruined in opening temperance beverages.

One of John D. Rockefeller's daughters while at Vassar, instead of spending her allowance entirely on herself, saved enough to pay the tuition and expenses of another young woman from the country who could not afford such advantages.

Senator-elect Shoup has no desire to have his name changed, however suggestive it may be, and the first man who refers to him without emphasizing the "h" is likely to find himself in what the rest of the name would suggest.

Prince Albert of Thurn and Taxis, in Germany, is reputed to be the best dressed man in Europe. His wardrobe is really remarkable for its lavishness, and he turns the taxes of his domain into trousers, as it were.

Watkin James, who is a keeper in Mr. Carnegie's Homestead mill, near Pittsburgh, claims to have married the mother of Henry M. Stanley, and hence to be the stepfather of the explorer.

Missed the Rocks by Ten Feet.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 13.—Officers of the United States steamer Mohican, which sailed from Ounalaska August 1, say that the Mohican nearly ran onto the rocks at St. George Island during a fog. The ship was going at full speed, when the breakers were seen ahead. The engines were reversed and the vessel's bow missed the rocks by about ten feet.

The cutter Rush picked up seven men in a whale boat from the whaler Triton. They had been lost in the fog and drifted around ten days before being picked up. They were in a terrible condition when found, one having gone mad. Several others are not expected to survive. Nearly all sealers have been notified to leave the Bering sea and have complied with the order.

The Penny Enters St. Louis.

St. Louis, Aug. 13.—At the request of Mr. A. J. Becker, chief engineer of the Pennsylvania railroad, Mayor Noonan has granted the road a permit to erect a mammoth freight station on the block bounded by Main, O'Fallon and Western streets and Cass avenue, at the western terminus of the merchants bridge. The station will be 705 feet in length and 60 feet wide. This move will make the Pennsylvania the pioneer in regard to entering the city and directly using its own depot.

Los Angeles People Were in It.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., Aug. 13.—A number of people in Los Angeles were victimized by the now notorious National Capital Building Association of Chicago, including several well known firms, some of them to the extent of several hundred dollars. The total losses in this city will probably reach $5,000. The company had an agent here for several weeks, who suddenly disappeared.

General Butler Is Not Dead.

BOSTON, MASS., Aug. 13.—A rumor that General Butler had died yesterday, suddenly, on his yacht America, obtaining considerable circulation in this city last night and created some excitement. It was ascertained later, from Lowell, that General Butler was not in his yacht, but was at his home in that city and enjoying his usual health.

Congressman Scott Is Better.

ERIE, PA., Aug. 13.—Ex-Congressman Scott's condition is slightly improved. Drake, his physician says: "I am confident Mr. Scott will recover, though his recovery will be necessarily slow." He has passed the turning point and the chances are good.

Big Chicago Assignment.

CHICAGO, Aug. 13.—Joseph Bros. & Co., dealers in dry goods, at No. 90 Fifth avenue confessed judgment in the circuit court this morning, amounting in the aggregate to $42,511. The largest creditor is Frederick Miller for $20,000.

The Great Benefit.

Which people in low down state of health derive from Hood's Sarsaparilla, conclusively proves that this medicine "makes the weak strong." It does not act like a stimulant, imparting fictitious strength, but Hood's Sarsaparilla builds up in a perfectly natural way all the weakened parts, purifies the blood, and assists to healthy action those important organs, the kidneys and liver. $

THEY ARE THE PEOPLE.

The Wheeling Butchers Entertain the Populace Royally.

A GREAT CALF-KILLING CONTEST.

A Fine Parade in the Morning by the Knights of the Cleaver—Bicycle and Horse Racing on the Fair Grounds. The Biggest Picnic Yet.

The Butchers could not have asked for a more beautiful day for their parade and picnic. Beginning at an early hour in the morning the outside delegations began to come in, and were received by the committees appointed by the local butchers. The neighboring towns furnished a large number, and the Etanville band headed the delegation from that town. The men were not long in getting in line for the parade. At about 9 o'clock the procession started in the order and along the same route as printed in Wednesday's INTELLIGENCER. The participants were all in uniform, and the carriages in the line were handsomely decorated. The older members rode in carriages, while the young men and others who thought themselves young, rode on horseback. About four hundred were in line, and were loudly cheered and applauded for their handsome appearance. The first carriage in the parade was occupied by Mayor C. W. Seabright, Sheriff Louis Steenrod, President Charles Loeffler, of the Butchers Association, and President Charles Hoffman, of the Hide and Tallow Association.

Arrived at the Fair grounds the parade disbanded and the grounds were thrown open. The people entered the place in a steady stream for several hours. Dinner was eaten on the grounds about twelve o'clock, and at about four over 7,000 people had entered the gates.

The races began about half past two o'clock. There were four contestants in

THE BICYCLE RACE, which was the first on the programme, R. H. Maulde, Oscar Smith, Charles Schaub and Alvin Low. The heats were a half mile dash each, and the first two in succession were won by Maulde, his time being 1:37 and 1:35. Maulde got the first prize, Smith the second and Schaub the third. The two first were gold medals, the third a silver one.

The time had now arrived when the quality of the horseflesh belonging to the butchers was to be tested. The pacing to sulky race was the first to come off, the entries being Nellie, Topsy May and Charley, for a $35 prize. The first heat, one mile, was won by Charley, Topsy coming in second, Nellie third. Time, 3:20. In the second heat Nellie came in first on the homestretch, Charley second, Topsy third. Time, 3:18. Third heat—Charley came in first, Nellie second and Topsy was drawn. Time, 3:04, Charley winning first and Nellie second money.

The next race was a mile trot, the entries being Henry Burke's Jim, John Wenzel's El Roy and C. A. Heil's Tracy. Two heats were run, Tracy coming in first on both heats. Time 8:38 and 3:32. The judges were Jacob Ehni, R. Landemuth and William Burke. John Gannon was the starter, doing his work first-rate, and not giving the word "go" until a good even start was obtained by all the contestants.

The time had now arrived for the main event of the day, the calf-killing contest, between Charley Dannenberg, of Wheeling, and John A. Born, of Allegheny, Pa.

RAPID WORK BY BOTH.

A platform about five feet high had been built north of the judge's stand. No one was allowed on the platform but the contestants and the judges, each man's judge being allowed to handle him his tools and lift the calves on the hooks. The first two calves were brought in a wagon and laid on the platform, having already been butchered.

By this time the grand stand was packed, and the space between the platform and the stand was crowded with sightseers. Dannenberg was the first to start, and skinned his calves in 11 minutes and 35 seconds. The Pittsburgh man's friends had been very quiet while the dressing was going on, but when the time was announced they cheered as much as Dannenberg's friends. They had claimed that the Allegheny man could dress his meat in nine minutes, and were elated with the prospect.

Some time elapsed before Born's calves were brought, and in the meantime a few bets were made. The Allegheny man started in on his work about fifteen minutes after Dannenberg had finished. While his work was progressing a good deal of howling and some jeering was going on, which only became stronger when his judge asked the crowd to cease in order not to excite him. When he finished and time was called Timekeeper William Bader, of Allegheny, announced his time as 9 minutes, and Timekeeper J. C. Hoge announced the time as 10 minutes. Others who held ordinary watches agreed with Mr. Bader. The judges examined the dressed calves, and added 30 seconds to Born's time on account of the rough way in which his calves were dressed, thus making his time 9 minutes and 30 seconds, 2 minutes and 55 seconds faster than Dannenberg's. H.M.R. Hoge's time is taken as official. Mr. Dannenberg only fell 1 minute and 5 seconds short.

Everybody agreed that Dannenberg's calves were dressed the best, being ready for the market just as they hung. There was considerable dissatisfaction, many contending that the contest should at least have been declared a dead heat, owing to the superiority of Dannenberg's work. Everything was amicably settled in the end, and the money was paid over.

THE SPECIAL FEATURES of the day were now ended, and the crowd repaired to the other end of the grounds, where the liquid refreshments were to be obtained. The dancing platform had been well patronized all afternoon, there being an immense crowd which could not be lured away by the races or the calf-killing contest. At 8:30 o'clock the signal for the break-up was given. Notwithstanding the process of emptying the grounds was hurried as much as possible by those in charge, over an hour elapsed before the thousands could obtain egress.

The yacht ferry did a rushing business during the day and evening, and several skills helped out the yacht in transferring the multitude. No accidents of any seriousness occurred, though one or two girls got a good wetting. Lots of people crossed over on the bridge, not desiring to wait their turn on the ferry.

The best of order was observed on the grounds during the day, and no brawls or fights marred the good humored aspect of the whole day's proceedings. The various committees had made perfect arrangements and everything worked like clockwork. The picnic was most successful, and everybody agrees that the butchers are "in it" when it comes down to good, solid fun.

LOTS OF SEALS.

A Sealing Schooner's Captain Says St. Paul's Island Is Covered.

VICTORIA, B. C., Aug. 13.—The Canadian sealing schooner C. D. Rand has just returned to Vancouver from Bering Sea, where she was seized by the American cutter Rush, ordered to St. Paul's Island and then released and sent home. Captain Alcock is full of bitterness over his seizure, as he declares there was not an illicit skin on his vessel. While at St. Paul's Island he declares that he saw thousands of seals more than he ever saw before. For about three miles, he said, there was a fine sandy beach, from fifty to 150 yards deep, and reaching up to the grass above. On this beach was a sight worth seeing, good for sealers to feast on. To attempt to give any estimate of the seals, old and young, male and female, would be folly.

"I have seen a field of ice on the Atlantic off which were taken 240,000 seals, and at another time I saw 25,000 taken off about six acres; but they were not one-eighth so plentiful as the fur seals on and near St. Paul's Island, while the water all around us was actually alive with seals. It is quite impossible to give anything like a correct number, for look where you would it was full of seals. Up the hillsides as far as we could see was one moving mass.

There is one thing, however, that will affect the seals, and that is the fearful state of the air. So many seals have been slaughtered and their dead bodies left to rot that the air is so tainted one can hardly breathe. There is no doubt that the smell of rotting seals does more injury to seals than all the sealers who go to Bering Sea."

A NEW SWINDLE.

A Good Thing to be on the Look Out For.

DELHI, N. Y., Aug. 13.—Some New York city sharper is trying a new swindling game on merchants in this section. B. and S. Mendel, of the firm of Mendel Brothers, have stores at this place and one at Oneonta. Another brother, Moses Mendel, lives in New York. One day B. Mendel, of this place, and S. Mendel, of Oneonta, simultaneously received telegrams purporting to come from the New York brother, asking them to send him telegraphic money orders, in one case for $85 and in the other case for $100, to supply instant and pressing needs. The money orders were to be addressed to Moses Mendel at a Western Union office on Third avenue.

As it happened, Moses Mendel had just visited his brothers in the country, and their knowledge of their affairs led them to at once to detect the application for money was an attempt to swindle them. The same trick was tried on Mr. K. Forman, another Oneonta merchant, who has a brother in New York, but in this case also the sharper's name failed to work.

The Crayon Portrait Fraud.

NEW YORK, Aug. 13.—Postmaster Collins, of Brooklyn, has received an order from the Postmaster General's office, directing him to withhold all registered letters and money orders sent to the Tanqueray Portrait company, of 751 to 755 Dekalb avenue. This concern has been sending circulars all over the country, offering to make crayon portraits absolutely free of charge. After the portrait is finished its delivery is refused until a frame has been purchased for it from the company at a cost greater than the regular price. Complaints were made to the postoffice authorities that the concern was a fraud, and the order was the result.
